The Interview. Laura Gascón Herrero. Diputación de Teruel.

From Symbios Project we spread the Methodological Guide for the Development of Shelter Policies for new Inhabitants in Rural Areas by the project Philoxenia Plus, in which you took part. Up to which extent can the advice in this guide for Teruel be applied? Up to which extent can the Council of Teruel contribute to make this recommendations be incorporated in development policies in your territorial area?

Teruel took part in a project called PADIMA. This was on anti-depopulation policies in the mountain areas in which we worked for three years in matters related to this issue, and, finally, a cooperative was created to work wool, which was the result of copying a good practice from one of the project's partners: www.ardelaine.fr.
